ARGUMENTS ON 2.75 BEER IN U. S. COURT

By International News Service.

Washington, Dec. 11.—The Supreme Court today heard arguments as to the right of brewers to sell 2 1/2 per cent. beer prior to the enactment of the Volstead act, enforcing war-time prohibition if not after the enactment of this legislation.

Indirectly, the constitutionality of the Volstead act, fixing a maximum of one half of one per cent. alcohol in beer, is challenged.

The test cases were brought by the Standard Breweries of Baltimore and the American Brewing Company of New Orleans.

Ellis Root and William T. Guthrie of New York and William J. Mahoney of Baltimore were counsel for the brewers. Assistant Attorney-General Pierson represented the government.

Root held there is a large quantity of 2 1/2 beer held by the brewers that was manufactured after July 1 and before the Volstead act became effective in October, can be sold.

The contention of the attorneys for the brewers is that 2 1/2 per cent. beer manufactured after July 1 and before the Volstead act became effective in October, can be sold.

LOSSES IN WAGES 80 MILLIONS

Coal Miners Hope to Recover With Pay Increase; Operators Lose 20 Millions

Washington, Dec. 11.—The coal strike cost more than $100,000,000. This estimate is roughly arrived at by J. D. A. Morrow and other officials of the National Coal Association.

The loss of wages to the strikers is estimated at about $60,000,000.

The loss to the operators is estimated at more than $20,000,000.

The loss to the United States is increased cost for coal for railroads and ships is figured at about $20,000,000.

It is estimated that the loss to the miners will be made up in increased wages. Operators hope to make up their losses by increased production.

The government and the people who suffered for lack of coal are apparently those who will bear the burden of the strike.

Directors of the National Coal Association, representing about three-fourths of the bituminous operators of the country, met in special session here today to consider the crisis in the coal situation. It was intimated that ways and means of getting all the mines into operation again, as to the petition, amount to $15,000,000.

Wilson Thanks Lewis for 'Patriotism' of Coal Miners

Washington, Dec. 11.—President Wilson this afternoon sent a telegram to John I. Lewis, acting president of the United Mine Workers, thanking him for the "patriotic" action taken by the miners and declaring that "how we must all work together" to effect a permanent settlement.

The text of the telegram follows:

"May I express to you and through you to the other officers of your organization my appreciation of the patriotic action which you took at Indianapolis yesterday. Now we must all work together to see to it that a settlement just and fair to everyone is reached without delay."

WILL TELL HOW HE KILLED FOLEY

Jesse Murphy, confessed murderer of Edward P. Foley, has offered to tell a detailed story of the shooting in order to clear Charles Rollins, according to a telegram received by Major Thomas L. Walsh, the latter's counsel, today.

Murphy, who is confined in a Pennsylvania institution, is willing to shoulder the entire responsibility in his desire to free Rollins, now serving a life sentence for the crime.

The telegram sent to Major Walsh by Dr. C. B. Holbrook, acting superintendent of the State Hospital for the Criminal Insane at Fairview, Pa., read:

"Murphy states if any more information needed to clear Rollins he will furnish it."

The confession, obtained by an American representative at the Pennsylvania institution, was forwarded to Boston today in legal form and turned over to Rollins' counsel, Major Walsh, who would place it in the hands of District Attorney Pelletier, together with the telegram from Dr. Holbrook.

As a result of this confession, which was published exclusively in the Boston American, it was understood that Governor Childs will be petitioned to grant a pardon to Rollins.

Will Go Before PAROLE BOARD.

If this is done, the government will refer the petition to the Board of Pardon, who will investigate and report back to the Governor.

He will then refer the matter to the Pardon Committee of the Council, who will hold hearings and report back to the Council for action.

Drawing a pardon depends on the joint action of Governor and Council.

In the confession, which was signed by Murphy, the convicted declares that, accompanied by a pal whose name was withheld, he shot Foley.

GIRLS SEEK TO BREAK XMAS FUND RECORD

Final preparations have been made for the big double tag day tomorrow and Saturday in aid of the Boston Maiden, Quince and Children from small, early decorated baskets. These comely young women who are to aid the basket fund by selling tags taken from numerous commercial and academic schools and colleges, fraternal American Christmas Bazaar Fund which, it is expected, will add hundreds of dollars for the purchase of food for needy families.

Tags are to be sold by scores of pretty girls in Boston, Cambridge, and elsewhere.

MCCARTHY CHARGES C. G. A. WITH GREED

"Selfish greed" was charged against the Good Government Association today by W. P. McCarthy, former senator, candidate for the city Council, who spoke in several campaign rallies.

The Good Government Association is trying to serve its own interests instead of those of the city," declared McCarthy. "The city has been attempting to assist the city manufacturer and the city has been a few months ago? No; they allowed them to move in and take over the same situation has existed in other lines of business."

Where there are women and young children and elderly people it is always well to have a mild, gentle, acting laxative like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin handy. This is a combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin which does all that is required in constipation, and does it with safety and comfort. It is free from narcotics and may be given to babies. Half a million mothers have it in as many good American homes, and these families are healthier for it. Every drug store sells Syrup Pepsin at 50c and $1 a large bottle, the latter for those who already know its merits.

NO MORE LOANS TO ALLES, SAYS FORDNEY

Europe is Getting On Its Feet, Declares Head of Ways and Means Committee

Washington, Dec. 11.—Additional loans or extensions of credits by this government to European governments will not be authorized by the present Congress, Representative Joseph W. Fordney of Michigan, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, declared today. He said he had received indications from various sources that appeals to Congress are to come soon from several quarters for financial help for some foreign peoples.

"I do not think the people of the United States are willing to extend their existing heavy loans to foreign governments and people of at arm's length for additional credits," said Mr. Fordney. "I am bitterly opposed to any such extensions, and I think our committee feels as I do on this question, and the result of this committee will be to vote first for additional loans and commitments."

Through this trade the needy foreign governments are being helped. Their money shortage troubles will be solved.

It is well to keep in mind the fact that shortly after signing the armistice, President Wilson urged Congress to authorize a loan to foreign governments, both to help them and to stabilize conditions in this country, and Herbert Hoover said that unless this country loaned money to Europe the bottom would drop out of prices in this country.

Mr. Fordney said that neither the President nor Hoover had been wrong in their views. He said that prices have soared in this country.

Stirring Tale of the Redwood Forests of California

Romance in Which a Live Girl Plays a Most Unexpected Part

By PETER B. KYNE.

Famous author of romantic novels of the great outdoors, among which are "Cappy Ricketts" and "The Three Godfathers."

CHAPTER I.

IN the heart of the great redwood forest, where the trees stood like sentinels, a young girl named Shirley Sumner was playing a most unexpected part. She was a girl of about sixteen years, with a face as fair as a lily and eyes as blue as the sky. She was dressed in a simple, white dress, and she was looking up at the trees with a look of wonder and awe.

The Redwoods

She had been walking through the forest for hours, and she had seen many things that she had never seen before. The trees were so tall and so straight, and the air was so fresh and so pure. She had heard that the redwoods were the tallest trees in the world, and now she was seeing them for herself. She was so small and so young, and the trees were so big and so old. It was a strange and wonderful sight. She had been told that the redwoods were the oldest trees in the world, and now she was seeing them for herself. She was so small and so young, and the trees were so big and so old. It was a strange and wonderful sight. IN MEMORIAM

John Shepard, Sr.

With the funeral of John Shepard, Sr., at St. Paul's today, Boston pays her last honors to one of the best loved and most successful of her pioneer business men. As a captain of industry of the last quarter of a century he was a typical New England self-made man.

From his start as clerk at $1 a week until his retirement in 1911 from the firm of the Shepard Norwell Company, now The Shepard Stores, his reputation for business ability, foresight and personal integrity was always one hundred per cent. From his beginnings as clerk he bought out his employer on Hanover street then the city's business was young, and started the career which was to culminate in the huge department store of today, extending from Winter street to Temple place.

But it was his lovable personality and unfailing old-time courtesy that endeared him most of all to his fellow-citizens. Thousands whom he never knew invariably received his kindly smile and bow in passing. His love for horses and all dumb animals was deeply imbedded in his nature and found expression in the owning of several prize-winning trotters. He was a fine driver and a sound judge of horsemanship. Mr. Shepard was supremely happy when sitting in his cutter on a Winter's afternoon holding the reins over a speedy pair on the old Mill Dam. Many a lively brush over the hard snow he enjoyed those days with rival horsemen, who considered it an honor to try conclusions with such a sportsman.

He was thoroughly imbued with the civic spirit and had the intense pride in his community even to a greater extent than that felt by the other big merchants of his day. He was a firm believer in American-made goods and was among the first to feature them in the country.

He was a broad gauge life of persistent and well directed endeavor and his passing leaves one more name of the few remaining successful pioneer Boston business men.

Rent Probe Bill Should Be Passed by Legislature

One Seen of Lynn, a landlord, refused to tell the Commission on the Necessaries of Life why he increased the cost of rent to his tenants. His lawyer has advised him not to do so. Rent is not a commodity, "within the meaning of the act" by which the Legislature created this commission to attempt to force down the cost of living, his lawyer advised him. They went to court and the court sustained the landlord and his lawyer.

The law said that the commission may inquire into all matters relating to "the production, transportation, distribution and sale" of the commodities which are necessities of life. The court interpreted that law to mean that the commission was limited to things which are movable. A cake of ice, a box of salted herring or any other article that could be tucked into a freight car and moved from place to place was a proper subject of inquiry, but by reason of the fact that a family could not pack their apartment into a trunk and take it about, the landlord could increase their burden of living without excuse or explanation to the authorized officials.

Some will agree with that interpretation. Others will not. But a mere disagreement will neither alter nor improve the situation. Landlords upon whom the earlier investigations of the commission had a deterrent force may increase the cost of rent confident that they are now enabled to escape the publicity which would make them conspicuous as profiteers. And new increases may be levied by those landlords who were cautious when the commission was active.

Mr. Young of Weston has filed with the Legislature a bill which would authorize the commission "to study and investigate the circumstances affecting the charge for rent of property used for living quarters or for the production of the necessities of life." The Legislature doubtlessly had intended to do that very thing. To give evidence of its good intentions, the Legislature should pass this bill without delay.

A PIECE OF CHANGE AND PEACE OF MIND

Isn't it silly for you to try to pay bills for unnecessary things when it is such a struggle to meet your everyday needs?

Why not leave out the trifle and have greater peace of mind?

Of course, you would not admit that your club and party dues, restaurant money and clothes to keep them up, are dearer to you than any thing else in life.

If this be true, there is no use reasoning with you.

But if you are of the right sort, however, your home life, happy home life, should be the greatest comfort and joy for which you should be willing to sacrifice.

Anything which robs home of its comfort is not worth what it costs. But if your unnecessary expenses are the cause of later regrets in your home, because there is so little left to keep up the inevitable, you are on a grave course and a dangerous one.

Get over the "keep-up-appearance" idea.

Come down to the point where you balance your home life, the comfort and happiness of your children, against the pleasure which robs the home of the many of its joys.

It should be easy for you to decide which way to balance.

Stars and Stripes

Even in patriotism we like best to do our fighting by proxy.

The man who boasts about his ability to lose his wife usually takes off his shoes in the hall when he gets home late at night.

When they try the Kaiser where will they get a job of the peepers?

In spite of all arguments to the contrary, we must be getting back to old customs. An Ohio bank cashier is gone with $100,000.

Y^e TOWNE GOSSIP

By K. C. B.

YOU RECALL the couple
THAT HAD the trouble.
ABOUT the prude nie
AND SHE went away
AND CAME back again.
UNTIL YESTERDAY.
FOR MORE than a week
AND EARLY last evening
WE CAME downstairs
IN THE same elevator.
AND THE tall, sad man
WAS ALL dressed up
AND SO WAS his wife.
AND THEY had their wraps.
AND WERE going out
AND THEN I lost them.
ON THE lobby floor.
AND FOUND them again.
JUST MAKING ready
TO FIND a place.
IN THE revolving door.
TO GET to the street.
AND THE tall, sad man
WAS DOING his best.
TO MAKE his wife
GET INTO the door.
AND EMPTY places
WOULD come around.
AND SHE'D let them go by.
AND THEN all at once
SHE MADE a dive.
FOR AN empty space.
AND JUST as she did
THERE CAME a man.
AND HE leapt her to it.
BUT SHE never quit.
AND WEY' right on in.
AND THEY both went around
IN THE little place.
AND SHE WAS dragging
WHEN SHE came out.
AND THE strange man with her.

I THANK YOU.

Elinor Glyn Reveals Secrets of Love

ELINOR GLYN, author of "Three Weeks," "His Hour," "Where Love Leads," and other novels of romance and passion, has analyzed the emotion of love scientifically. In the writing of her novels she has been forced to delve deeply into the psychological side of the mysterious attraction which we call "love" for want of a better expression. She has become an authority on the subject.

Mrs. Glyn has been prevailed upon to set forth in a series of articles for the Boston Sunday Advertiser some of the discoveries and conclusions which she has made as the result of her study. She has entitled the series "My Secrets of Love."

The first installment, which appears on Sunday in the Magazine Section, is addressed more particularly to the woman readers of the Boston Sunday Advertiser. "How to Win a Man" is the title which she has given it—and she proceeds to describe minutely how to go about such a proposition.

"Study your man, find out what he likes, and give it to him—but don't let him know what you are about." That is the gist of Mrs. Glyn's advice. "There is no use in giving sugar to a bird if sugar makes him sick and some other food would be more acceptable," she declares sagely.

Do not miss the first installment of this instructive series Sunday in the Magazine Section of the Boston Sunday Advertiser.

Massenet, dead French composer, appears to have sent his ghost to haunt the scenes of his old age.

More Truth Than Poetry

NEARING THE NEXT CATASTROPHY.

About the middle of next year the populace will quake with fear. We'll hear all sorts of dire predictions: Each candidate will tell us he Alone can save us—for us. I've saved to tell the "old stuff" the war and want of my convictions.

DOES ANYBODY CARE

An old bachelor wrote that one of his tribe invented the Safety First idea. He doesn't explain, however, whether he offers the fact as a boast or an apology.

FATE

A hand within another laid, a sad, sweet stab, a whispered word: A boy without a care, a maid whose heart is gladly, strangely stirred. Two beings on a single chair, two souls with but a single thought, A heavy snap upon the stair, a foe that spells forget-me-not!

The Dawn of a
New ReligionBy

ment," "Benighted Mexico," "The Sober World," etc.

B! hark! the service has begun. The woman organist is playing very sweetly a prelude of Tours. The pipes of the instrument are true and well mellowed with age and the player has mastered of her purpose. A hymn, the Apostles' Creed and then the quartette choir sing Salter's "The Lord Is My Light." In a moment comes the quick realization that it is a choir which would grace any great church and that thought is not dispelled when a few moments later an inspired appeal by the rector is followed by the Lord's Prayer, chanted beautifully by the choir—and we know of no more severe test than this chant which is as rigid as a Gregorian Gloria. Schuecker's "Come Ye Disciples" and the "Hymns of Tours" are included in the service and the conclusion is forced upon us that it is a quartette whose voices harmonize with remarkable truth.

The Sermon

"The Footprints of the King" is the title of the sermon by the rector, the Rev. Charles R. Ross, D. D., an old theme in new dress which struck us as being particularly appropriate to the hour. It is a weary trail that leads through many a mountain pass, across a river and over a crest and torrent, but it leads to a quiet soul and Dr. Ross painted his landscape and his path in vivid, graphic tones.

It would take much space and many words to discuss in detail the intricate beauty of the service at this remarkable church. It is the fashion of service that we might expect to find in an upper Fifth Avenue Church or some where around Hyde Park in London, but hardly in a Boston suburb.

The Episcopal musical services in the evening at 7:30 are even more attractive to young people. Harps, lutes, flutes, and the string and wind instruments mentioned in the Bible lend to the great musical beauty of these services and the very cream of the musical talent of all New England is employed to bring them to the highest point of religious perfection.

I was told before I went out to Newburyville that I would find this church making a path across the dawn of the new religion that was remarkable, but I do not believe any one accustomed to the average city church would believe without seeing.

"The New Era" is the title of the church publication, which, with a handsome half tone illustration of the church as a frontispiece, is in keeping with the whole remarkable policy of the pastor, the vestry and the congregation.

The following introductory editorial gives the ideas of the character of the work:

"The Church was alive to the war needs and measured up. She is alive to the New Era just dawning. Home fires kept burning in war days must now blaze. Spiritual light and warmth must welcome our returning warriors. Men in service faced death on land, on sea and in the air. Returning, they must not face a dead church."

"The New Era" is now calling on men, heretofore inactive, to enlist themselves and their families for active service in the church.

"The world is not safe for democracy. The New Era says, 'Democracy must be made safe for the world.' The church is the one great hope for such an achievement. If the church fails, the New Era fails, Mr. Good Citizen, do you care?"

It would take about two columns of type to publish the briefest references to the church activities. After the morning service a men's Forum is held in the church. I had the good fortune to be present at one of these gatherings. The subject for discussion, as I recall it, was the cardinal principles of religion, and the efforts of that fine body of men with the assistance of their pastor to set at the light was well worth remembering. There is a men's club, countless almost in its activities, which does not confine to Newburyville but are sometimes carried into the dark places. There are women's societies and gatherings and assemblies for the young people, innumerable. The whole place is a beehive of industry.

The below-cited cost waste is traveling from west to east with great rapidity.

Industrial wars are almost as unending as international wars. The big war ended a year ago, nominally, but there is no peace yet. Pray the coal war will not take so long to "let the old car die."

The Boston American, amazed, learns that a clergyman in Vermont, paid only $600 salary, became a veterinary surgeon and now earns $3,600 a year.

It is ludicrous that human beings should pay a man $600 for taking care of their souls and six times as much for taking care of cows, horses and hogs. But they know the hogs are real.

And you find something as amusing in the government of the United States, which sends expert advice and specialists to any family worried about the breeding of a small pig, calf or lamb, and has only sympathy, and little of that, for a mother worried about her children. Pigs and calves are worth money.

At least ten million men, women, girls and little boys will see Griffith's picture, "Broken Blossoms." The hero is a yellow Chinese pulchritude; the villain and love is a white English girl, a fighter. The Chinese is kind to a little girl. The white father kills her. The Chinese kills him.

Editors say this spreads ideas concerning the two races, and that idealizing Chinese, an indirect protest against exclusion, is unwise.

One fact settles the whole difficulty.

The face of the "Chinese" actor, in the picture, convinces you that he really would protect race children. But that "Chinese" face is the face of a white man. Mr. Griffith, with all his genius, could not show what he wants to show with anything but a white face.

In all the four hundred millions of yellow people that labor in the Chinese Empire Mr. Griffith could not have found one face that, put upon the screen, could by its possibility have expressed one characteristic that is attributed to the Chinese hero in a picture taken from the Lighthouse Night's stories. Only a white man could so impress the qualities wanted in a white man's country.

Our Chinese friends will tell you that white faces all look alike. Chinese faces look alike to the eyes of white men, and that a Chinese Griffith making a "Broken Blossoms" would have to select a Chinese to play the part of the American hero, because no Chinaman could see anything really good and pure in an American face.

That, however, is another story.

The Japanese ambassador, through Honorable Fanote, that it is impossible for the powers of the world to settle the Russian problem by force.

After a while, perhaps the Grand Lama of Tibet, and the ruling chief of the Zulus will also announce that, in the long run, one hundred and fifty million Russians will settle their own form of government.

And, a little later, there will probably come an announcement that even the highly educated government of the United States has made the same discovery.

A group of business men, manipulated by the Milk Trust of a big city, resolve not to increase the retail price of milk, because it would reduce consumption to the ultimate injury of the producers. Men and women supply free lunches to half-starved children in public schools, find difficulty in teaching the children.

Thousands of young children in public schools do not know how to use a fork, spoon or knife for coffee or tea, when milk is given to them. Of course, their bodies and brains are underfed, and free education offered in worthless to them. A starved brain cannot learn.

But that does not interest the gentlemen, that resolve not to increase the retail price of milk. They fear that additional starvation might hurt the milk business, so they wonder that Socialists make converts?
